Q: Hibernate Query: most efficient join method Hello my Hibernate beginner friends, I want to join one table to one or many other tables in order to get the best performance. My query is as follows: @NamedQuery(name = "getClassesByStudent.findAll", query = "SELECT c FROM Class c JOIN c.students s WHERE s.student = :studentId AND c.isActive = true AND c.creationDate IS NULL")

When I run this query, I do not get any results although all information is there and I know it because I am creating the exact same query in Hibernate to create a database and I get results back. So how do I write my query for best performance. A: The query can be very simply stated as: @NamedQuery(name = "getClassesByStudent.findAll", query = "SELECT c FROM Class c LEFT JOIN c.students s WHERE s.student = :studentId AND c.isActive = true AND c.creationDate IS NULL") (Untested, your db might have additional restrictions to the matching) 1.
