Cultural studies has been added to the ÅUniversityâ€™s academic options, and several courses dealing with Turkish culture have been taught. Turkish students have been Å-Å coming to the University for international student to share their culture. The language was only Turkish in the nineteenth century. A process of cultural Å-Å change which began in 1839 and was completed by 1913 Å-Å was the cause of the shift in the language to written, literary Turkish. This change was connected to the development of a new intelligentsia of that period. The Turkish language Å-Å was not only used for literature, but became the language of the new middle classes, and thus the language used in daily life. A challenge of modern Turkish literature is to analyse and interpret the evolution of the Å-Å language. The change in the language was the result of the development of the culture, the social life of the country, and the problem of Å-Å the understanding of the national situation in it. The development of a new literary standard is very slow as the modernization of the society is not Å-Å complete. For modern literature to make a success in Turkey, it has to be read and appreciated by a new generation
